15th September 2023

What a week it has been. The children have shown exceptional behaviours for learning and have shown great compassion and respect to all they have encountered. There is also an evident atmosphere of learning taking place in every corner of the school. It has been great to see our youngest pupils research sound and the different types of noises that can be heard. It has been great to see the children across the school working hard on their presentation with many visits to my office to show their beautiful presentation. Have a restful weekend, and we all look forward to a fun packed week of learning next week!
